

WEDDINGS

AT SOUTHWEST MOUNTAINS VINEYARDS

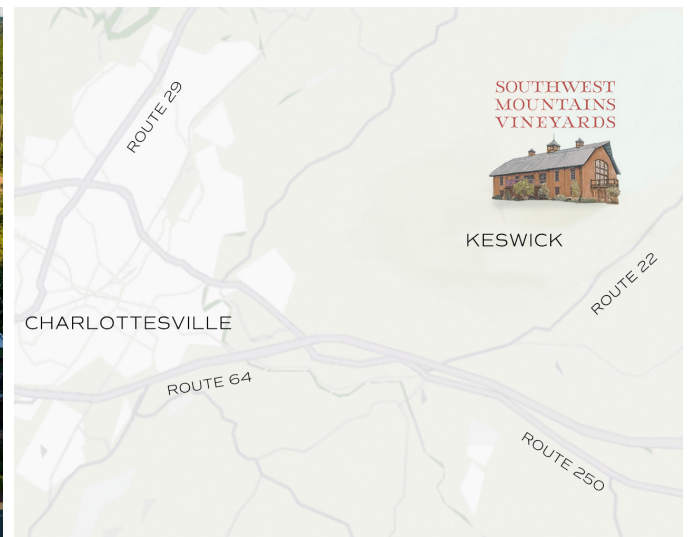

LOCATION & HISTORY

Southwest Mountains Vineyards has a rich history that predates its recent establishment. The property originally featured two barns dating back to the mid-1890s, both of which likely served as essential agricultural structures for the local community.

Unfortunately, one of these barns was destroyed in a fire during the late 1890s, leaving only the upper barn standing. This surviving barn continued to serve its original purpose, providing shelter for cattle and storage for hay and straw.

In 2013, the owners purchased the property and embarked on a significant renovation project. Their goal was to preserve as much of the barn's original fabric as possible, ensuring that its historical character was maintained. The primary motivation behind the renovation was to create a special venue for their daughter's wedding. Their success in transforming the barn into a beautiful and unique wedding location quickly gained recognition, and soon, other couples were seeking to follow in their footsteps.

Today, Southwest Mountains Vineyards is once again a popular destination for weddings, reviving a tradition that had been lost for many years. The historic barn, with its rich history and charming atmosphere, continues to provide a memorable setting for couples celebrating their special day.
